

How to make a mini book from one piece of paper!

To make an 8 page book

Fold a piece of A4 paper in half, short edges together.

Open the paper up, and fold each edge in towards the middle, lining up with the crease you made

Open it up again, and fold it in half the other way, long edges together. When you open the paper out, you should see eight squares

Now fold your paper in half again, short edges touching. Starting at the folded edge, cut along the crease line half way

Open the paper, then fold it with the long edges together.

Hold your paper by the ends (with the cut at the top), and push the ends in. The cut will open up like a diamond first.

Keep pushing until your paper looks like a cross.

Now fold all the 'pages' of your book together and press them flat.

How to make a mini book from one piece of paper!

To make a 16 page book

Fold a piece of A4 paper in half, short edges together.

Open the paper up, and fold each edge in towards the middle, lining up with the crease you made

Open it up again, and fold it in half, long edges together. Open it up and fold each long edge to the middle. When you open the paper out, you should see sixteen squares.

Open your paper out, and cut part-way along the creases, alternating the direction of your cuts. Don't cut all the way along the paper!

Starting at one corner, fold your paper like a fan, under and over. When you reach the end of a row, fold your paper onto the next row, and keep folding.
